

Hello Green Ash,

It has been so lovely to receive your emails. Thank you.

I love hearing about your learning and what you are enjoying. It has been lovely to see your pictures and crafts and all the other fun things you have been doing. The wonderful rainbows you have created will make everyone who sees them feel happy as they are a symbol of hope. I thought you might like to see one of the rainbows I made, (above).

Please don't worry if you haven't sent me an email yet, there is still time and I understand how busy everyone is. The main thing is that you are staying safe at home – well done. ❤️

I hear that some of you have found the lovely pebbles Red Ash made and then painted some yourself, what a lovely idea.

It has also been lovely to see photos of some of you clapping, banging pans and playing instruments for the marvellous NHS and key workers on Thursday evenings. Brilliant! 😊

I am glad so many of you have enjoyed reading 'The Very Hungry Caterpillar'. I have planned some more activities and learning for you, linked to Elmer the elephant this time. I know you like that story as well and it is Elmer Day on Friday! Continue to enjoy yourself and have fun as you learn!

Remember to keep looking after and watering any plants you are growing. I expect some of you will have green hands when I next see you, from all your gardening! Keep helping at home and washing your hands. 😊

With love from

Mrs Tritton xxx

P.S. A joke for you: (Clue; see the picture at the top of the page.)
What is as big as an elephant, but weighs nothing?
An elephant's shadow!
