

Dear Red Ash,

I hope you are all well. It has been lovely seeing some of you in school. If you need to be at home to stay safe and protect others, keep up the great work you are doing. I still look forward to your emails and might just give you a surprise phone call during the week. 😊

I thought you might love to learn about snails for the next couple of weeks. We will carry on our theme of using information books and video clips to support our learning. Snails are fascinating creatures, and they would have loved the rain we had the week before last! Our phonics will include the ai sound. It is ai, snail in the rain! Try to get used to the many ways to write this sound.

The next batch of Alliums are getting ready to bloom in our garden, they have very thin stems. I keep thinking the wind will blow them over soon!

The caterpillars that we an 'extra' from Nina, have transformed into beautiful butterflies and will be looking out for you in your gardens in Berkhamsted by the time you get this letter.

Hope to see or chat with you all soon.

Mrs Murphy xx
